DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rhoads (US 4,817,136).

Rhoads teaches an automated telephony system R comprising: a scanner 30 for reading information on a calling card C; and the remainder of the circuitry (items 32-66), serving as a session initiator, coupled to the scanner, that analyzes that information read by the scanner, extracts a telephone number from the information and transmits a signal containing the number to a telecommunications device 66 to initiate a telecommunications session with central station 68. The telecommunications device is generally of a conventional telephone set. The information contains digitally encoded information such as a person's phone number, as well as data pertaining to his/her company (figure 1, col. 2, line 60 – col. 3, line 13, and col. 10, lines 5-15). The same information may be printed on a common-side face of the card in human-readable form (figure 1 and col. 5, lines 24-27). The encoded data may be in the form of a bar code or magnetic stripe (col. 9, lines 46-50). After the initial scanning of the data of the card, storage 36 temporarily stores the data for verification of the scanning, therefore providing an application where an existing, supporting database of data containing the human-readable data is not needed beforehand.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. See Tsay (TW 290774 A), Hughes et al.
